Wallace to retire after 16 years at chamber

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

Innovations that have increased the Henry County Chamber of Commerce’s profile — and the community’s along with it — originated during Pat Wallace’s term, say those who have worked with the retiring director.

Wallace’s last day will be June 30, ending her 16-year tenure at the quarterly chamber dinner at the Henry County Extension Office, which begins at 6 p.m.

Being chamber director became Wallace’s second career after her 32 years as a teacher with Henry County Public Schools.

“I had retired from the school system, Henry County, in ’96,” Wallace said. “I was piddlin’ at home, doing nothing really. To be totally honest I was really getting tired of doing nothing.”

When Doug Kalbfleisch, formerly the owner of the Eminence Car Wash, called to ask if she wanted to become the director, Wallace had a question of her own.

“I said, ‘I don’t know. What’s a chamber?’” she recalled. “I did not know Henry County even had a chamber because when you’re a teacher your head is in the classroom and you’re not paying attention to what’s out there in the world.”

She kept a photo of her first chamber meeting March 18, 1999, with many pinholes from being stuck on a bulletin board. Attendees broke into small groups to discuss what they wanted the chamber to do, which Wallace said was a great help to her while she was still finding her way.

Wallace started her term with an office at the Heritage House antique store. The chamber office moved to the corner of Main and Cross Main when that closed.

After visiting businesses, attending regional tourism meetings, working at the Kentucky State Fair to promote Henry County, setting up networking meetings, hosting chamber dinners, serving breakfast at the Harvest Showcase and more over the years, the mileage added up.

“We’ve worn out four cars since we took this job, because we ran all over the county and the state going to meetings

Kentucky Storm couldn’t recover their good position with the Henry County Fiscal Court due to a fight and shooting that occurred after the June 13 football game, though no members of the home team were involved.

Authorities made no immediate arrest after the incident at the Henry County recreation park between two members of the visiting Indiana Trybe football team resulted in a non-life threatening head wound to Guy Brown of Indianapolis.

Kentucky State Police troopers questioned Marcus Anthony Lewis, also of Indianapolis, after pulling over his black Mercedes in the vicinity of Campbellsburg. Authorities released Lewis, after finding ammunition in his car that matched a shell casing left at the scene. Authorities heard a claim of Eminence Independent Schools will soon be the owner of the Deli Plus strip mall, although what they plan to do with it is yet to be determined.

EIS is set to close on the property that previously contained a gas station/convenience store and several retail outlets this Friday, providing the district another series of options to consider to round out their expansion project.

“It has been literally nothing but good news,” Buddy Berry, EIS superintendent told board members at their June meeting last week. “The survey is complete. The audit is complete and those results should come in the next few days. We received final approval from the state to say buy it...”

“We’ll be able to renovate there sooner rather than later,” Berry added.

Now the board is faced with deciding what major renovations, if any, to make to the Warrior Activity Center and for what purpose they want to use it and the newly acquired Deli Plus space.

SILLY SAFARIS DELIGHTS LIBRARY PATRONS

Coyote Chris from Silly Safaris, in the photo at left with Chaos the coatimundi, delighted and thrilled large audiences in attendance at the Henry County Public Library's Summer Reading Program June 19. Both children and adults smiled when Chris introduced the crowd to an animal with claws and sharp teeth – a rabbit with the name of Foo Foo. He also noted that rabbits communicate by rubbing noses, and he encouraged Annika, below, from the audience, to rub noses with the bunny. Coyote Chris also had reading tips to go along with each animal and suggested the Stone Rabbit series.

Coyote Chris needed several helpers from the audience in order to hold onto Bert the boa constrictor.

and that kind of thing,” Wallace said. “It kept you busy. It was interesting.” The second half of the “we” is Jesse, Wallace’s husband, who always assisted with chamber activities. “He’s been a big help,” she said. “I could not have done this job without my husband. Jesse’s always been involved with the community — he was a charter member of the EMS when they started it, and he was a charter member of the Pleasureville Fire Department and a member of the Eminence Fire Department. He was in the Lion’s Club and helped with the fair. Volunteerism has been a part of his life and he’s went right along with me on this. I couldn’t have done it without him. He was just a tremendous help and I thank him very much.” The work has paid off — the chamber went from 80 members at the start of Wallace’s term to about 180 now. Several chamber officers who served with Wallace give credit for the chamber’s growth and positive programs to the work of the retiring director. Terri Cummins, the chamber’s treasurer, called Wallace an awesome director, and UK Extension Agent Maryellen Garrison, who’s worked with Wallace since she was hired, said she’s done an outstanding job. “I’m a full-time believer in the difference Pat Wallace has made in Henry County,” local real estate agent Steven Woods, who served as a chamber officer several times, said. “She and her ‘sidekick,’ Jesse, have more energy than most 20-year-olds,” Cummins said. “Pat and I have worked together at the chamber for over 10 years, and I have always found her to be the most honest, trustworthy person you would want as your executive director in a non-profit organization.” “I was on the board when she was hired, and from the very beginning, she has worked extremely hard at ‘promoting pride and progress,’ the motto of the Henry County Chamber of Commerce,” Garrison said. Just about every program the chamber pursues today came about during Wallace’s time in the office, Woods added. Wallace even had to approach the chamber board twice to get approval to set a booth up at the Kentucky State Fair each year, he recalled. The first time, the board turned the idea down, but Wallace persisted. Now, Woods sees the booth as a great outreach. “When promoting Henry County, what better place than the state fair?” he said. “I’ve worked it every year since, and we get a lot of promotion from there.” The chamber produced its first magazine that collected important Henry County information all in one place under Wallace’s oversight. The first book had glossy color pages that

Pat Wallace saved this photograph taken at her first meeting as director of the Henry County Chamber of Commerce and pinned it to her bulletin board. featured photos of local attractions and provided a relocation guide, a membership directory and list of community resources. The chamber opened a permanent office at the intersection of Main and Cross Main streets in New Castle, Woods said. Wallace helped launch the first chamber website. The first chamber networking dinner came occurred since Wallace has been the director, an idea she picked up from Oldham County’s chamber, Woods said. And she helped develop the Leadership Henry County class, which has tackled many community projects including a disk golf course in Harry Hill Park, refurbishing the courthouse’s clock and installing benches and planting trees in the Henry County Recreation and Services Park. The latest group is working on a sidewalk to make the pond in the new park accessible to everyone. “Pat was always game to try something new, always picked up ideas from other chamber directors, and had a special love for Henry County and a desire to make it a better place in which to live and work,” Garrison said. “The Leadership Henry Program, the Henry County Pride of the Counties booth, the chamber breakfast at the Harvest Showcase, and the Patrick Henry Award Program would never have come to fruition without Pat’s guidance and some help from her trusty sidekick, Jesse.” “A lot of firsts with Pat Wallace,” Woods said. “She kind of took a small, rural, part-time chamber and turned it into a full-time chamber.” As she considers the future, Wallace still wants to do something where she can visit with people. “I’m going to look for another little easy part-time job,” she said. “I can’t work in a store because I’m getting too old. If I can find a job where I can talk to people, that’s what I enjoy.” In some ways, Henry County remains an “undiscovered treasure,” but Wallace has confidence that the new chamber director, Paul Cole, will come up with new ideas to promote the community. “I see that the chamber’s going to do well, that Paul Cole, the new director, is very enthusiastic, has a lot of new ideas, is really interested in growing the chamber” she said. “I think he will be a real asset. He’s got a background in marketing and I think that will help because our businesses need marketing.”

The center of the Henry County Middle School gymnasium was transformed into the Relay luminaria display. The names of loved ones lost to cancer as well as the names of those who fought cancer and won or are still in the battle adorned bags and lanterns. At the center, a wreath honored Connie Singleton, a long-time supporter and advocate of the Relay For Life, who recently passed away.

Although Henry County's Relay For Life was moved indoors Friday night, spirits were not dampened by the rain falling outside. Relay teams set up booths in the Henry County Middle School gymnasium, a makeshift "track" was carved out in the remaining space and fun activities spilled over into the commons area. Under the new format for Relay, events concluded at 1 a.m. and the county's donation totals to the American Cancer Society were announced — nearly $44,600 was raised this year to continue the fight against cancer.

Outdoor events always at mercy of Mother Nature

A good event planner thinks of everything. After choosing a date, picking just the right venue, setting a schedule, lining up participants and volunteers, there are hundreds of emails and phone calls to confirm all the plans and be as ready as possible for the big day.

Despite all efforts, there is one aspect of the day that even the best planner has absolutely no control over – the weather.

This past weekend, Mother Nature threw a huge curveball at two major events in the county when 90 to 100 percent chances of rain were predicted to interfere with the outdoor events. The two organizations that planned their respective events chose to react to the situation in different ways, drawing both positive and negative feedback from the public.

Henry County's Relay For Life, scheduled for Friday night, has always been held on the Henry County High School track. Part of the basic premise of the event is to walk the track through the night in honor of those who have battled cancer. There have been years when the weather has not cooperated, but the rain-or-shine event has persevered and typically enjoys tolerable, if not favorable, weather. Only in dangerous conditions has the event been called off early.

This year in light of the near-guaranteed rainfall, Relay organizers moved the event indoors to the Henry County Middle School gymnasium and commons area. The bleachers provided plenty of seating, space was carved out for team booths (campsites) and event tables all over the gym floor, the center of the gym became the luminary area, a narrow "track" snaked around it all and activities spilled into the commons area.

Admittedly, it was crowded and a little chaotic, but all were dry, had ample access to electricity and enjoyed indoor restrooms. But there was another added benefit that was rather unexpected — a strong sense of community was palpable among event-goers. Because of the close quarters, everybody was engaged in the same activity at the same time and experienced the event cumulatively instead of individually.

MELISSA Blankenship
Publisher

Although it broke with tradition, the decision to move the Relay to an indoor venue proved successful.

The next day's forecast was just as dire with downpours likely most of Saturday. After months of planning, the City of Campbellsburg made the difficult decision to cancel Campbellsburg Day with the intent to reschedule it for later this summer.

Although some of the day's events could have been moved indoors, a majority of activities would have been cancelled. No parade, no outdoor sound system, no ADD. But yes, the city could have held the event regardless.

However, the city had to consider the time, energy and effort that would have gone into forging ahead with the event in proportion to the number of people that would have ventured out in the rain to participate. It is likely that few people would have braved the soggy conditions to dart in and out of the city's buildings only to leave wet and disappointed.

Rescheduling an event of that size is a daunting task as well. Certainly, not every vendor or entertainer will be able to commit to a new date with so many summer activities scheduled throughout the region. But on the other hand, a new date might be more appealing to some who couldn't make the original date. Win some, lose some.

Cancelling Campbellsburg Day was the only viable option for the city. And the decision to move the Relay indoors was an excellent choice. Although armchair quarterbacks may question or criticize both, organizers should feel confident they made the best decision for their events.

Like good event coordinators, they were trying to think of everything and cover all their bases, but most of all, they thought about you, your safety and your enjoyment.

Good call, guys.

Protecting our road funds

At a recent House Rules committee hearing, one of my colleagues from New York declared that the potholes in the roads in her district are so bad, "you can lose your car in them." Kentuckians and Americans from all over the country agree. It is long past time that something was done to address the deplorable state of the highways and infrastructure in this country.

That is why I recently introduced the "Developing Roadway Infrastructure for a Vibrant Economy Act" (DRIVE Act). The DRIVE Act (H.R. 1461) would ensure that money in the Highway Trust Fund is actually spent on highways. Common sense would lead most people to believe that the gas tax revenue that funds the Highway Trust Fund should be spent specifically on highways, roads and bridges. However, when it comes to the operations of Congress and the federal government, common sense is uncommon.

Many Americans are unaware that gas tax revenue is regularly diverted from the federal Highway Trust Fund for such things as bike paths, sidewalks, mass transit and other purely local projects. This must end. Inflation and vehicle fuel efficiency have drained the fund so that it no longer generates enough revenue to pay for all the improvements necessary to ensure that our highways and bridges are safe and adequately maintained.

Each year, approximately

THOMAS Massie
U.S. Representative

$9 billion in the Highway Trust Fund goes to the Mass Transit Account, which funds local public transportation projects, including subways, light rail, buses and streetcars. Current federal law also allows the money in this trust fund to go toward sidewalks and bike paths. While I recognize the value of sidewalks and buses, taxing gasoline and routing that money through Washington is not the way to fund these inherently local projects.

Congress continually attempts to solve the problem with temporary "patches." For example, in July of 2014, Congress transferred $10 billion in tax revenue from the General Fund to the Highway Trust Fund to keep it solvent. Just last month, we again voted to temporarily patch the Trust Fund. This "patch" only lasts 60 days, though, ensuring that in two months, Congress will again be forced to deal with a manufactured emergency. As with most of these so-called "emergencies" that we regularly face in Congress, this one could be avoided if members would get their priorities straight and realize the urgency of a long-term solution for our deteriorating roads and bridges.

My DRIVE Act is one such long-term solution. Rather than increase the current 18.4-cent fuel tax to fund the Highway Trust Fund, we should first restore the highway trust fund to its original purpose. Support for my bill is growing, and co-sponsors include Representatives Justin Amash of Michigan, Dave Brat of Virginia, Jim Bridenstine of Oklahoma, Ken Buck of Colorado, Tim Huelskamp of Kansas, Jim Jordan of Ohio and Mick Mulvaney of South Carolina.

Of all the things on which our federal government spends taxpayer dollars, transportation and national defense are specifically constitutional. In fact, I believe that transportation is critical to our national security. A nation with dilapidated roads and collapsing bridges is not a nation ready to defend itself in the wake of a national emergency or attack.

In two months, when Congress hits the next "deadline" for the insolvent Highway Trust Fund, let us hope that Congress considers a common-sense solution like the DRIVE Act, rather than simply another short-term patch. Americans shouldn't have to worry about losing their car in a pothole the next time they're on the road.

Connecting Kentucky to the world

Three months ago, when the Washington Post ran a story comparing peak broadband internet speeds among the states, the news for Kentucky was not good: We came in last, behind Arkansas. Our rate is half of what can be found in Virginia, which placed second.

That same article did point out, however, that significant change is on the horizon for the commonwealth. It noted that we are in the early stages of investing as much as $350 million to increase internet speeds dramatically. Construction along the I-75 corridor and Eastern Kentucky is set to start soon, and the 3,000-mile project, which will reach into all 120 counties, should be complete by the fall of 2018.

Gov. Beshear, legislative leaders and Congressman Hal Rogers announced this initiative early last year, and the General Assembly included $30 million in the budget to get it started. The federal government is providing millions of dollars as well, but private interests will cover most of the rest.

This is not something homes and businesses will tap into directly. Officials call it the "middle mile," since it will form the backbone that providers will use to cover that "last mile" connecting

RICK Rand
Ky. Representative

Kentuckians to the rest of the online world.

As recently as the early 2000s, broadband internet could largely be considered a luxury, but that is no longer the case. Those without it, or without adequate speeds, suffer.

The state's Department of Education underscored its importance just last week, when it announced that it had added more than 30 school districts to a pilot program that allows virtual learning on snow days. This could help these districts avoid having to make up as much as two weeks' worth of classes.

It doesn't require much thinking to come up with a dozen or more positive uses of broadband in our daily lives. Unfortunately, nearly a fourth of our rural citizens have no ready access, and we are paying far more for the service we do get. Nationally, it costs residential customers $3.51 for each megabyte-per-second download speed, but in some of our counties, that cost is nearly four times as high.

As we begin moving forward with this game-changing project, it's important to note that Kentucky has had success in other ways when it comes to the internet. State government routinely gets high marks for its online presence, for example, and our libraries are playing a major role in helping citizens who may not have high-speed internet at home.

Last Friday, Kentucky House leaders said they had formed a special committee that will focus specifically on technological issues between now and the end of the year. Its first meeting, set to take place early this week, will cover the progress of the state's broadband project.

There is no doubt that it holds a considerable amount of promise for the commonwealth, and once it is up and running, we should see our state ranking jump significantly when it comes to peak internet speed. Even a small gain in this area could reap significant benefits for all of us, so the sooner we reach this stage, the better.

Knowing CPR can help somebody stay alive

At work, home or in our communities, you never know when an emergency will occur. If someone has sudden cardiac arrest there is a four to six minute window for help to arrive before it is too late. Cardiac arrest is an electrical malfunction in the heart that causes an irregular heartbeat and disrupts flow of blood to the brain, lungs and other organs. Each year almost 400,000 out-of-hospital cardiac arrests occur in the United States. Unfortunately, fewer than one-third of cardiac arrest victims get CPR from someone nearby. Bystanders may feel uncomfortable with conventional CPR that requires chest compressions and mouth to mouth breathing. The American Heart Association and Red Cross are now promoting Hands Only CPR to help resuscitate victims with a witnessed collapse. Hands only CPR is just like it sounds – the technique uses chest compressions with the hands only and no mouth-to-mouth breaths. Studies show that the Hands Only method can be as effective as conventional CPR in the first few minutes after cardiac arrest. The goal of promoting Hands Only CPR is to increase the comfort level with CPR and likelihood that bystanders will help provide care until trained emergency personnel can arrive. Surveys say that one quarter of Americans have been in a situation where someone needed CPR. If you were one of them, would you know what to do or would you feel like a helpless bystander? If you see someone suddenly collapse you should check the scene and the person. Tap on the shoulder and shout “Are you Okay?” If there is no response begin the steps of Hands Only CPR. • Call 911 • Interlock your fingers and with the palms of the hands push hard and fast in the center of the chest. The goal is to compress the chest at least two inches and compress at least 100 times per minute. An easy way to reach this pace is to push to the beat of the disco hit “Stayin’ Alive.” Keep doing CPR until the patient starts breathing, another trained responder or paramedic arrives to take over, the scene becomes unsafe or an AED is ready to use. If an AED, or Automated External Defibrillator, is available, turn it on and voice commands will walk you through the steps of use. About 90 percent of people who suffer out-of-hospital cardiac arrest die. CPR performed immediately can double or triple a victim’s chance of survival. Hands Only CPR methods make people feel more confident and they are more likely to remember the correct rate when trained to the beat of the familiar “Stayin’ Alive.” For more information on how you can save a life, please visit the American Heart Association or American Red Cross websites. Both have videos that you can watch for demonstrations of Hands Only CPR. These sites can help you find short 30-40 minute courses on community first aid and Hands Only CPR. These sites and your local first responders can also help you find first aid courses that cover more advanced CPR and emergency procedures. Educate yourself and save a life.

Kentucky safety standards raised for child seats

A new child safety seat law takes effect today, June 24, according to a news release from the Kentucky State Police. Governor Steve Beshear signed the booster seat bill into law on June 15, requiring children younger than 9 and between 40 and 57 inches tall be secured in a booster seat. The bill requires law enforcement officers to issue citations to violators with a $30 fine, although no court costs will be assessed. In addition, violators will have the option to purchase a booster seat instead of paying the fine. Boosters are intended to lift the child up off the vehicle seat to improve the fit of the adult lap and shoulder seatbelt. The lap portion of the belt should fit low on the hips or high on the thighs and the shoulder portion of the belt should be snug across the collarbone. An improper fit of the adult safety belt can cause the lap belt to ride up over the stomach and the shoulder belt to cut across the neck, potentially exposing the child to serious abdominal or neck injury. For more information about the new booster seat law visit <http://transportation.ky.gov/Highway-Safety/Pages/Child-Passenger-Safety.aspx>.

SHERIFF’S RANCH WELCOMES HENRY CAMPERS

The Kentucky Sheriff’s Boys and Girls Ranch summer camp during the week of June 14 welcomed Dakota Shuck, Brayden Murray, Luther Davis and Trevor Burchfield, all from Henry County. Also pictured are Henry County Sheriff Danny Cravens and daughter Macey, Deputy Randy Hartford, who transported the campers, and Ranch Head Counselor Kayla Mayfield. The Boys and Girls Ranch is a non-profit organization, serving Kentucky’s youth through a summer camp program designed to build their self-esteem, while teaching them respect for themselves, others and law enforcement professionals. The camp is free to campers, thanks to the dedication and support of sheriffs, members and contributors. The cost of serving the children is now more than $300 per week per child. In addition to regular camp activities such as camp fires, arts and crafts, nature, sports, swimming, fishing and archery, the campers also enjoy race cars presented by local citizens, a fire prevention program by the Gilbertsville Fire Department, a drug awareness education program by the Marshall County Sheriff’s Office and the McCracken County Child Watch Program. For more information about the Boys and Girls Ranch, call (270) 362-8660.

Dear Henry County Water District Customer,

Over the past several months, it has come to the attention of the Henry County Water District #2, its Board of Commissioners and Employees that there has been an increase in cloudy water throughout the District’s service area. Some of the District’s customers have been affected by this occurrence more than others.

The District’s water comes from deep wells along the Ohio River. Your water is not drawn directly from the Ohio River. There are naturally occurring minerals that are part of the makeup of the source water used by the District. The primary minerals are Iron and Manganese. The levels of these minerals are low to moderate in the six wells that provide water.

The District is required by State and Federal regulations to chemically treat the source water before it is delivered to our customers. These chemicals interact with the minerals in the source water. The District has been working with a water chemistry expert to resolve the problem. The Division of Water has been provided all test results during this process. The District has been assured that the water is perfectly safe and does not pose a health issue of any kind. The issue is an aesthetic matter only.

As part of the efforts to address the issue, personnel and procedure changes have taken place. Further recent test results indicate significant improvement in treating the cloudy water problem. The District is meeting all EPA and Division of Water Standards.

In an effort to remove any pockets of cloudy water in the District distribution system, the Division of Water has recommended that the District flush the entire distribution system. This will take place starting 06/29/15. This flushing process will take place over the course of two to three weeks due to the size of the system. Customers may experience cloudy water and lower than normal pressure during this procedure. This will be temporary.

There has never been a ‘Boil Water Advisory’ issued due to the cloudy water issue. The only agencies that can issue a ‘Boil Water Advisory’ are the District and the Division of Water. Typically, advisories are hand delivered to residents and posted on the District’s website at HCWD2.com.

The District is very conscientious about producing and delivering the best product possible to our customers. Our employees are customers too. The District appreciates the public’s patience while we resolve this issue. We apologize for any inconvenience.

Sincerely,
James T. Simpson
Chief Operating Officer
Henry County Water District #2

STORM

self-defense made in the shooting.

Magistrates shared their concerns about the Kentucky Storm semi pro team practicing and playing home games at the New Castle park when the fiscal court met June 16, three days after the incident.

County officials gave Kentucky Storm's Coach Richard Smith and Manda Gingrich, president of the team's board of directors, a chance to have their say about their continuing use of the ball field at the park.

"Absolutely none of our fans or friends or players or staff was involved in that in any way," Gingrich said. "It happened after the game, in a parking lot on the other side of the field. It had nothing to do with us. Our players played with class and grace and character."

The Kentucky Storm had a great win of 38-0 over the Trybe and knelt for a prayer after the game, she said. The incident happened in the parking lot between the Trybe's head coach and assistant coach, who's also a player, as they were getting ready to leave.

Gingrich stressed no one from the Kentucky Storm participated in the confrontation.

"That was an incident that involved people who aren't even from here and have no involvement at all with Kentucky Storm," she said. "I would ask you to strongly consider the fact that a lot of these players on our team that I know use this semi pro league as a springboard to different and better things."

Players polish their skills and get game time, she and Smith said.

While some may go to college, others try out for the NFL. Taking away the field can change the direction of their future.

Kentucky Storm officials have put a lot of effort into working with the players on the team, Smith said. "It's the only thing some of these guys have to keep them on the right path, is their playing football."

Giving the magistrates the stance of the semi-pro football league officials on the incident, Smith said they had removed the Trybe from the organization.

"After they were removed from the league today, they claimed no incident ever happened," he added. Smith had a feeling the two who fought would have done so even if there had been 10 Kentucky State Troopers around — the men were determined to fight.

An incident like this could happen anywhere. "What if it happened at a county fair, what if it happened at a mud run, what if it happened at a tractor pull, how would it be treated?" Smith asked. "I just want to be treated fairly. My guys acted with class Saturday. I was proud of them and this organization had nothing to do with that. We don't condone that behavior whatsoever."

Smith has heard good feedback about the Kentucky Storm from residents who have watched the team play. He said taking the field away would be like punishing people who are trying to do right for someone else's mistake.

"I love this team," Smith said. "I love what they're doing. It's starting to build a fan base. It's a shame to punish them."

It's a tough decision, Judge-Executive John Logan Brent acknowledged. He could see Smith making a difference in his players' lives.

"The problem is from my standpoint... I don't know what the rest of the court's going to do... we have 400 to 500 games a year at the park, we haven't even had a fistfight," Brent said. "This is the second game, and you've already had a shooting."

While Smith and Brent had previously talked about the players using harsh language, there have been more serious safety concerns now, he indicated.

"Problem is if it happens the next time, it's on us," Brent said. "That's my biggest concern."

The players depend on having these opportunities through the Kentucky Storm, Gingrich said.

"We have people who depend on us for a safe place," Brent countered.

Magistrate Jason Stanley said he worked with Smith and supported the idea of the team using the park.

"I wanted it to work," Stanley said. "In the beginning, we told [Smith] we were going to give them a shot and if there was trouble we were going to have to stop it. I hate it for you guys. It's not personal, but I think it's a safety issue."

After he attended and enjoyed the first home game, Stanley found what happened later with the Trybe unfortunate.

"I went up there the day after [the shooting] and took a rake because there were puddles of blood in the gravel parking lot," he said. "I just thought how horrible at your public park. I took the rake up there to rake the gravel so there wasn't a puddle of blood there."

He doesn't want people to be afraid to go to their own park. He doubts parents would want to take their kids there during a game.

Magistrate Nick Hawkins said he has the utmost respect for Smith, who had formerly been his football coach.

"I respect and admire what you do but when I went to church Sunday morning, I had probably 20 people come to me and say they were concerned," Hawkins said. "They felt like [allowing the Kentucky Storm to use the park] wasn't a positive thing for us to do."

Expecting a home game on Saturday, Magistrate Jerry Beasley suggested the team could use the field for that last game and then find somewhere else to play. People use the walking trail and county officials don't need any shooting going on at the park, he added.

County officials hoped the Storm could find another home field and said it's not personal against the Storm.

"It's too late to find another field," Gingrich said. "It's too late to give their money back, because we've ordered their uniforms. It's too late to tell them that, 'Oh well, somebody outside of our control messed up your future.' We earned this spot. We follow the rules, our team follows the rules. We behave in an appropriate, smart way and now we're being punished. It's very personal."

Though he said he hated having to do it, Stanley made a motion the county not allow the Storm to use the park for its games.

Brent noted the legal advice he'd gotten indicated the team should not be able to practice in the park either, but Stanley and others felt it was okay for the Storm to continue to practice there.

After a second by Hawkins, the motion ending the semi-pro football games at the park was approved.

Initial plans included adding space to the activity center to convert it into more of a field house for the district's athletic programs, including a weight room and locker rooms. However, that additional space would require the installation of a fire wall, to the tune of $50,000, that had not been anticipated. Now that the Deli Plus space has been added to the renovation equation, the board can choose to convert part of that property into the field house and use the remaining space for classrooms.

Recent developments have provided another possible use.

"Could Deli Plus be a possibility for our childcare program?" asked board member Ben Coomes.

At last month's meeting, the board directed Berry to design and implement an after-school childcare program to fill a void created by the closure of Joy's Day Care, which had previously provided the service. Berry has moved forward with the new program and has hired a director.

"Joy Royalty will be leaving Shelby County Schools to come here and head up our program," Berry said of his new hire, who had been providing a very similar service to the neighboring school district. "She's a licensed daycare provider and she knows the certification and reimbursement process and she's bringing her years of experience and resources with her."

"In my opinion, we couldn't have done better with a hire," Berry added. "And we are looking at where we'd like her office to be and where to hold the program. We can put it at Deli Plus. If we put the weight room and locker rooms in the activity center, that frees up that space. Or we could use the cafeteria, maybe that's a better fit. But I'd like to get her input on that."

Something else to consider, Berry said, was converting the former strip mall into an Early Learning Center that houses the district's preschool classes, the headstart programs provided by the Ohio Valley Educational Cooperative (OVEC), possibly the after-school childcare program, if space allows, and maybe even the OVEC administrative offices, which currently shares space with the EIS Board of Education.

"I think they would prefer that because their office would be connected to their classrooms," Berry said. "Then we could use that additional space for offices and storage because we're pretty tight in here as it is."

The district plans to honor the terms of a lease agreement it entered into with OVEC to provide office space; it's ten years into the 20-year contract. Berry said they would still provide the office space, just at a different location, which would still fulfill their obligation.

The board will discuss the various options at their next meeting in July.

The board did decide what to do with the KFC building it acquired last year. For one school year, the building was used for culinary classes, but when renovations began in earnest, it was discovered the building had significant mold in the walls, as well as other issues.

"I strongly recommend the building be demolished and turned into a parking lot," Berry said. "When it's all said and done...it will cost us $9,500."

Board members agreed with Berry and voted to raze the structure to create a gravel lot that would later be paved.

Despite all the changes to their construction plans and even the new acquisition, Berry assured board members that the project was financially sound.

"We've had 40 change orders, but we haven't used any contingency money yet," Berry said. "We're in a really good place."

That's how many Kentuckians, on average, read each copy of a newspaper.

You see, one reads it, then passes it on.
Then another reads it and passes it on.
And so forth.

So if you're trying to reach Kentuckians, advertise in the newspaper.
Pass it on.

Leslie Whaley, Emily Rice and Sarah Bryant, all of Henry County, were among the participants of the Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership Seminar at Eastern Kentucky University recently.

Three locals attend Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership Seminar

Three local students representing Henry County and Eminence high schools recently attended the Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership Seminar held at Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond from June 10 to 14.

Leslie Whaley of New Castle, Emily Rice of Eminence and Sarah Bryant of Eminence joined more than 230 other young high school leaders from the region.

Representing Henry County High School, Whaley is the daughter of Carla and Tony Whaley and Rice is the daughter of Judy Rice and Howard Rice. Also representing Eminence Independent High School, Bryant is the daughter of Mary and Allen Bryant.

Each spring, select area sophomores from public and private high schools convene at one of the 70 State Leadership Seminars across the country to recognize their leadership talents and apply them to becoming effective and ethical leaders.

Student participants (known as HOBY Ambassadors) take part in hands-on activities, meet leaders in their state and explore their own personal leadership skills while learning how to lead others and make a positive impact in their community.

At the end of their seminars, HOBY Ambassadors are challenged to give back by serving at least 100 volunteer hours in their communities. Students who complete the Leadership for Service (L4S) Challenge within 12 months of their seminar are eligible for the HOBY L4S Challenge Award and the President's Volunteer Service Award. Alumni who log 4,000 hours of service receive the President's Call to Service Award from HOBY.

To date, HOBY Ambassadors have performed over 3 million hours of volunteer service in their communities. Following a motivational meeting with Dr. Albert Schweitzer during a trip to Africa in 1958, Actor Hugh O'Brian was inspired to establish Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership.

"One of the things Dr. Schweitzer said to me was that the most important thing in education was to teach young people to think for themselves," O'Brian said. "From that inspiration, and with the support of others who believe in youth and the American dream, I started HOBY to seek out, recognize and develop outstanding leadership potential among our nation's youth."

For further information about HOBY programs and sponsorship opportunities contact Ally Claire Reed at (859) 493-2048.

way of doing things. Each position has a specific set of skills and necessary techniques that are being taught. I do think the boys have responded well and are working very hard throughout the summer."

Dorshefski thinks the team has some very important strengths after watching them through spring and summer practices.

"The team has a sense of family to it and that really makes me proud to watch," he said. "These kids want to be with each other. That has been evident from the very beginning. There are no cliques and no one tries to hold themselves above the team. It is this sense of family that is a huge strength for the team."

"I feel that overall, we are very young with some athleticism. We have a great group of leaders developing in our older players and that will trickle down to the younger players as the season goes on." Dorshefski's philosophy is to have an aggressive mindset as a team.

"Attack," he said. "We strive to go full speed in everything we do. We want to attack our opponents in every aspect of the game."

"We must also attack our own shortcomings in order to be successful both on the field and off the field. Football is more than X's and O's or wins and losses. Football is the greatest game and team sport there is, and it gives coaches an opportunity to develop our youth and teach life skills that they will carry forward towards a successful life off the field."

"Football teaches lessons, creates memories and develops bonds that players can carry with them for a lifetime. It turns boys into men by teaching commitment, discipline, responsibility, working through adversity instead of quitting and working toward the greater good."

Dorshefski had a message for fans of Warrior football. "Thank you for allowing my staff and me to work with your young men," he said. "Your support is so vital to the success of the team. I ask that each week you come out and support the team on Friday nights."

"Whether it is home or away, I want to pack the stands with the faces of the Eminence community. It is our goal to put a team on the field that the community can embrace and be proud of regardless of wins or losses. I want them to know when we are face to face with a great opponent, we will not flinch and we will not surrender."

"I know that many coaches start their careers or come to small schools for a couple of years to build their resumes. That could not be farther from the truth in this case. I want the team and community to know that my staff and I are dedicated to them and their development not only as football players but as good quality men and respectful student-athletes."

Athletic director Chris Nethery is pleased with the direction that he thinks Dorshefski will lead the team in.

"We are very excited with the vision that Coach Dorshefski has for the Eminence Warriors football team," Nethery said. "His enthusiasm and passion for the game will greatly benefit our program."

Wildcats, Warriors deal with realignment

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

The Kentucky High School Athletic Association has finished the thankless task of realigning football districts again.

The main factor for this realignment is that schools change classification as their enrollments shrink or grow. With six classes, there are always going to be teams moving from one class to another.

To keep the classes as numerically even as possible, the KHSAA has to go through a regular recycling of the classes and districts every four years.

This year the reshuffling affected both local teams in a big way.

The Henry County Wildcats are still in Class 3A, District 3. However, only one team from that district remains with the Wildcats and it is perennial power Central.

Elizabethtown and LaRue County have moved to District 2.

Replacing them will be four teams. Henry County will now be in a six-team district.

Moving into District 3 will be Moore, Waggener, Bardstown and Thomas Nelson.

Moore and Waggener are moving down from Class 4A while Thomas Nelson and Bardstown are moving up from Class 2A.

Ironically, the two Nelson County schools from 2A pose more of a threat to the Wildcats than the schools moving down a classification.

The Wildcats beat Waggener 42-0 last year. Waggener finished last season 1-10.

Moore finished the season 3-7 last year. The Wildcats and Mustangs had a couple of common opponents. Moore beat Waggener 18-0 and Carroll County 42-0. The Wildcats beat Carroll County 48-13.

Another big change for District 3 teams is that they will no longer be matched against teams from District 8 in far eastern Kentucky. They will now play first round play-off games against teams from District 5, which includes Western Hills, Boyle County, Garrard

County and Lexington Catholic. When the Wildcats face a road play-off game, their fans will no longer have to drive for hours on a Friday afternoon and evening to support them.

For the Eminence Warriors, district realignment was not good news. Gone from their district are Bracken County and Paris. Moving into their district are Louisville Holy Cross and Kentucky Country Day.

Bracken County was 0-11 last year and the Warriors' only victim. KCD beat the Warriors 55-0.

While Paris always has a solid team, they are no Holy Cross.

The Cougars beat a strong Henry County team last year. They are a physical team that took a pounding from the Wildcats and still found a way to win.

All in all it looks like the KHSAA did a good job in keeping the districts as geographically legitimate as possible. The Wildcats are in a six-team district but they get to stay closer to home. They could have been in District 5 with long trips to Lexington, Garrard County and Boyle County. Instead they have closer trips to Louisville and one trip a year to Nelson County to play either Bardstown or Thomas Nelson. As far as competition is concerned, the choice was between playing perennial powers Boyle and Lexington Catholic or perennial powers Central and Bardstown. Either way the Wildcats would face stiff opposition.

The decision to put them in a six-team district ultimately was the best one from a financial standpoint and a travel standpoint.

As for the Warriors, they now face a daunting task with three top Class 1A programs in their district. The Warriors will have to raise their game significantly this year to be competitive with these teams.

Many in the Eminence community have been calling for a tougher schedule with the idea that it will help the team become better. Now they will have it.

Dorshefski begins new era for EHS football

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

The Eminence Warriors will have a new football coach this season. Brian Dorshefski will be the third head coach in three years for the Warriors.

Dorshefski has been an assistant coach at Carroll County for the past five years. In his time with the Panthers he served as running backs coach, head JV coach and last year was the defensive coordinator.

Dorshefski, 35, is from Mountaintop, Pa., where he attended Crestwood High School. He played football through middle and high school.

Dorshefski graduated from Misericordia University in Dallas, Pa., where earned a history degree and secondary education certificate.

He has a wife, Tanya, and two daughters, Lily, 5, and Lucy, 2.

Dorshefski shared his thoughts about his first stint as head coach at Eminence.

"Building a program is a difficult task," Dorshefski said. "I believe excellence can and should be achieved through doing things the right way. There are not any shortcuts or easy ways to produce a winning program.

"There is no substitute for hard work and these boys work hard, which is refreshing considering the instant gratification culture we live in today. That is a very important building block for the future and one that is already in place."

Dorshefski plans to build on the traditions of long-time coach Steve Frommeyer.

"I also think you have to find the right coaching staff that shares your vision to meet your goals," he said. "In some cases you have to change the culture. It is not only the coaches and players who have a hand in building a program. School and community support is vital as well. It is my goal to create a family of the team, school and community.

"Coach Frommeyer did a great job here for a long time and had a lot of great traditions with his players and the community. We will bring back some of his old traditions and start some new ones as well."

When asked about the challenges facing the team as football season nears Dorshefski said, "I think the biggest obstacle heading into the season is that these young men are on their third coach in three seasons. There is some fear in the unknown and I have to build trust with the players.

"With that we bring in a new offense, defense and mentality. Each position is being asked to learn a new

The old coach couldn't keep it real

Gregwoods
Sports Editor

Coaches can be an obsessive lot. I know, because I was.

When I finally moved from an assistant basketball coach to a head coach, in the late '90s my outlook changed completely. As an assistant I think I was intense, competitive and responsible for the most part.

I had no idea, even after years as an assistant, that putting the word head in front of coach would make so much difference in how I approached coaching.

That first year as a head coach I did everything obsessively – scouting, practice plans, game plans.

I remember that our scouting report for our game against Somerset in the Class A state tournament was so detailed and long, that when we finally played them, our girls were not prepared to execute our own stuff. I had obsessed on the opponent too much and we forgot to play our game. We got hammered.

Another clue to how obsessed I had become was the picture of our team after we defeated Owen County in the finals of the Class A regional tournament. The girls were all smiling and holding up their index fingers as we posed with the trophy.

I had a look of relief, not joy, on my face. I also had dark circles under my eyes and my favorite lucky suit was hanging off me like the clothes a farmer puts on his scarecrow.

I was so obsessed with helping the team prepare that I forgot to eat and sleep sometimes. I stayed up after games going over videotape late at night looking for things we could improve upon.

I ate really bad food when I ate at all.

A few seasons later, I got into it with a fellow teacher who wanted to take half my team away for a convention... in the middle of the season!

I had a great deal of respect for the teacher in question and the program she ran. It was one of the most successful clubs in our school in terms of both winning awards and preparing our students for their futures.

But at the time, I couldn't see that. All I could think of was that several of my key players were going to miss practices and games in the middle of the season. We had a losing record but I was convinced that we could turn it around if we just practiced a little more and a little harder.

We certainly couldn't do it if people were running off to stupid conventions to accept awards and win statewide elections in the club.

Somewhere in the middle of this confrontation we both got very emotional. We both understood the other's anguish and wanted to come to a compromise. But there really was no compromise. The girls had to either miss the convention or miss basketball.

And then I came back to reality. Sanity washed over me. I realized that the girls on my team were outstanding students and leaders and that a couple more days of practice were not going to turn us into regional champions.

I relented. They went to their convention and we managed to get along without them for a few days.

It wasn't long after that incident that I decided that I had had enough of basketball coaching. When you become obsessed to the point of losing your grip on reality and what's really important, it's time to step back and reassess.

I became a better teacher, father and husband because of that decision. The girls on that team have moved on to happy, successful lives.

I hope they look back fondly on their time as Henry County Lady Cats. I appreciate the sacrifices they made as leaders in the school to come out every day during the long winter and try to satisfy their obsessed coach.
